Design Concept

Nature does not hurry, yet everything is accomplished. —Lao Tzu

With how fast paced and busy the world has gotten, people tend to forget to pause, breathe, and rest. The bathroom is known to be the comfort room, in which it must live up to its name. The little details of the bathroom create a big impact on the user's overall experience. The Filipino concept of “maaliwalas” encapsulates Kaalinaw, a bathroom that provides comfort through its design inspired by nature.

Design: Floor Plan and Elevations

Design Visuals: Full Bathroom

Upon entering the bathroom, the user will be welcomed by the relaxing aura of the bathroom brought by the warm colors, wood elements, and plants of the bathroom

Considering the users of the bathroom, prompt activity spaces, such as the basin and the cabinet, can be found immediately.

Design Visuals: Shower Area

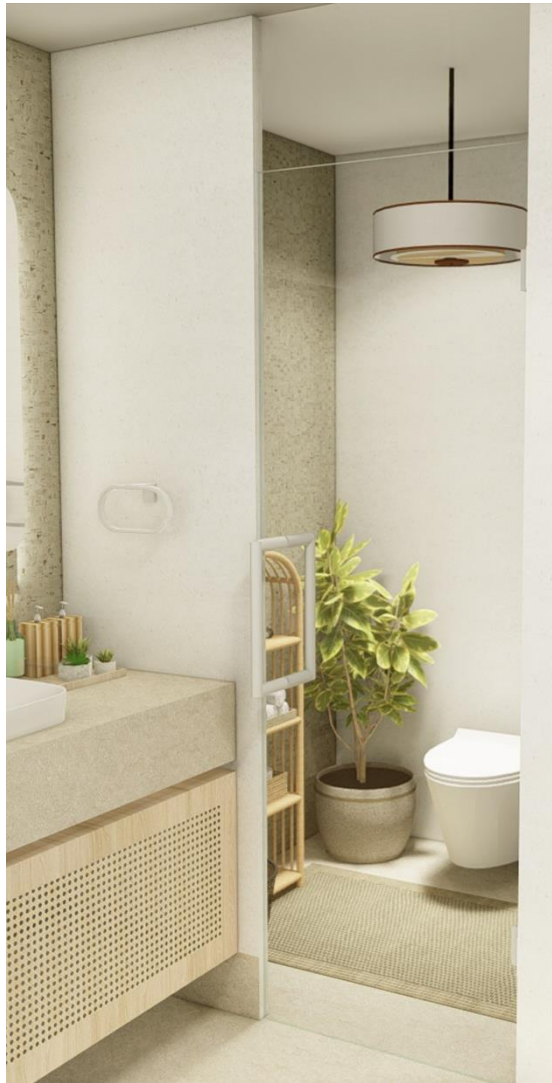

With the materials of the floor and wall complementing each other, the users will find themselves in a breathable space wherein they can have their "shower thoughts." The pleasant atmosphere of the space helps the users have a clear and peace of mind.

Design Visuals: Toilet Area

Comfort meets style in the toilet area wherein the user can have a sense of peace and quiet with the help of natural elements, such as bamboo and a Fiddle Leaf Fig indoor plant.

Given that most people use the toilet area for an extended period, an art piece and a space for essentials were provided to help the user achieve maximum comfort.

Design Visuals: Basin Area

Optimum storage was considered, given the limited space for the users. Being one of the most important parts of the bathroom, the basin area is designed in a way that the users will be able to use it efficiently and maintain its order without exerting any effort.
